TAKES NOTICE OF OWN NEGLIGENCE

City Starts Work of Repairing Damage to Wells Done Last March in Flood.

FIXES ONE BREAK IN MAINS

Blame For Water Shortage This Time is Not Laid on Users as Has Been Custom.

At last the city officials are beginning to take notice of their own neglect and the people will soon have plenty of water once more. The shortage of water, especially in the north part of the city during the last week, has caused many to wonder why there should be a shortage. When twelve thousand dollars was expended on three wells in the Jones pasture the people were led to believe that there would be plenty of water. This was true as last fall and all winter the supply was plentiful.

But these three wells have been cut off since last March and this in a way was directly responsible for the present shortage as it is well known that the old wells can not supply the demand. The superintendent of the water and light plant, the chairman of the water committee, the council, the mayor or someone evidently took the tip as work was started this morning on repairing one of the wells in the Jones pasture, east of the city. This is the only work done on the wells since the flood with the exception of placing some coal oil on the machinery immediately after the flood.

Each well is equipped with a motor and run by electricity furnished by the city. These motors have not run since they were submerged in March. All three wells should be in operation in a few days if the work is continued and then there should be no shortage. It was at first thought strange that there should be a shortage in water early in the year and investigation showed that these wells were not in operation.

Another reason for the shortage is assigned to a break in the mains in West Third street. There were two breaks instead of one. These two breaks cost the city many barrels of water each day that the consumer should have had. One of these breaks was repaired this week but there is still another that has not been touched. The one that was fixed was the one just west of Spencer street. The one that remains is

"HOD DICKETY DOG," ORIGINAL HERE IN THE SIXTIES, HITS NEW YORK

The Kids Are All Using It Since Tom

REPORTER WRITES A TALE

Back in the sixties the gutter loungers here in Rushville had an expression, "Hod dickety dog" which they liked to twang around on the end of their tongue. But it fell into disuse—and after so many years the phrase has hit New York.

Take Tom J. Geraghty's word for it. He writes that he aimlessly let the expression out one day and some one in the New York Herald office picked it up. A reporter with a fruitful brain wrote a dispatch from Mil-

BUYS 3 HORSES FOR $970

Packing Firm Pays High Price For Rush County Animals.

What is believed to have been the highest price paid for a team of horses in Rush county in recent years was paid this week when Kingan and Company of Indianapolis bought a team from Charles Leisure for $635. The same firm bought one horse from Phil Lewis of near Fauvau for $335. The three horses sold for $970. The three horses were draft animals and will be used in the heavy hauling of Kingan and Company. The representative of the firm who was here stated that the firm was doing away with auto trucks as they did not give the advertising that fine looking horses did.

THIRTY MEMBERS GOING FROM HERE

Local Company of Uniform Rank,
Knights of Pythias Will Make Trip in Automobiles.

REGIMENT TO BE INSPECTED

About thirty members of the local company of the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias will go to Newcastle tomorrow for the memorial service of the Third Regiment. The trip will be made in automobiles. The memorial address will be delivered at Southmound cemetery by Horace G. Yergin of Newcastle, a well known member of the Henry County Bar Association. The address will be preceded by a parade of the Third Regiment and members of the subordinate lodges.

Following the address the review and inspection of the regiment will occur. General Samuel L. Trabue of this city will act as inspecting officer. The Third Regiment is composed of companies from Richmond, Connersville, Knightstown, Hagerstown, Cambridge City, Mooreland, Wilkinson, Newcastle and this city.

GET CONTRACT.

The contract for the erection of the new office building of the Hoosier Manufacturing Company at New Castle was awarded on Tuesday to Robert Smith & Sons, of Lewisville. Work of constructing same will be started at once in order to have it completed early. The building is by 42x107 feet, two stories high and basement. It is to be constructed of brick and stone.

PRES. C. L. HENRY DENIES RUMOR

Says I & C. Has No Thought of Making Over Once Proposed
Route From Greensburg.

ABSOLUTELY NOTHING TO IT

Greensburg All Excited When Some One Starts a Story That Rushville Didn't Have Extension.

"There is absolutely nothing in it," was the emphatic way President Henry of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Company denied a rumor that another survey was to be made of the proposed route east from this city says the Greensburg newspaper.

The auditor of the company at Rushville referred the reporter to Mr. Henry after an unsuccessful attempt had been made to reach Mr. Warfel, who hitherto has been close to the situation here in Greensburg.

It was reported in this city Friday that the company was preparing to make another survey of the route out of Greensburg and would send an engineer here next week.

This engineer, according to the report, was to be here quite all summer and would have headquarters in this city. The report made it appear that the company had not selected the Rushville route finally and would have been interesting news to Decatur county people had it proved out true.

Townships in Rush county, through which the proposed line is to run, have voted a subsidy, as has been done in Franklin county. A tremendous effort has been made by those two counties to secure the extension and for the past few months persons at all interested in the line have settled down to the conviction that the company had selected that route.

Nevertheless, it is hardly probable that the company would give any more special attention to the Greensburg route unless there was a possibility of its building the line this way.

Mr. Henry's statement however, sets at rest any reports that another survey is to be made of this route. If the company should eventually decide to build east from here it probably would not regard another survey necessary.

PLAINTIFF RESTS CASE

Defense Introducing Evidence in the Chaney Case Yesterday.

Because of the death at Waldron Friday of Mrs. Fidelia Limpus, trial of the Chaney damage case in the circuit court here was continued at ten-thirty o'clock until next Monday morning, says the Shelbyville Democrat. Mrs. Limpus was the mother of Reuben Conner of Connersville, who is one of the leading attorneys in the case, and the continuation was taken out of respect for him. Early yesterday morning the defendant's side of the case was begun and two witnesses were heard before the adjournment. They were James Ochiltree and Albert McDonald. The plaintiff, Carlton Chaney, and his son, Harold E., were on the stand Thursday afternoon and Friday morning, and at the conclusion of their testimony the plaintiff rested his case.

CONTRACT GOES TO LOCAL MAN

Morris M. Winship Will Build Gings
School, According to Decision of Union Township Board.

FIVE HOURS MAKING AWARD

Low Bidder on Heating Contract
Makes Complaint When he is Not Given the Job.

Morris M. Winship of this city late yesterday was awarded the contract for building the Gings school house in Union township and W. H. Johnson & Son of Indianapolis was given the contract for installing the heating plant by the township trustee and advisory board in A. L. Gary's law office.

The main contention which caused the delay was over the heating contract. The board opened the bids at one o'clock and went into closed session, and the contracts were not finally awarded until six o'clock.

The successful bidder had the next highest estimate, but the township advisory board finally decided to give that firm the contract because it was W. H. Johnson & Son who installed the heating plant in the Glenwood building, which is in Union township, and the advisory board decided that it had given such universal satisfaction that they could not afford to take a chance on any other kind.

The successful bid on the heating plant was $2,150 and $275 additional with an automatic regulator. The lowest estimate was made by the Bryce Heating and Ventilating company of Toledo, Ohio, and was $2,027.

When the awards were announced by the board, the representative of the latter company made a complaint. He asked to be heard on the subject and the township officials granted him that privilege. When he had presented his argument, he asked the board to reconsider, but his request was refused.

Mr. Winship signed a contract to have the Gings building completed by October 15. The board would have liked to have had it finished before that time, because there is no place in or near Gings that can be pressed into service for school purposes. The opening of school will have to be postponed until that time. Mr. Winship's net bid was $10,497. The amount which he offered for the old building is deducted. The next lowest bid was $12,900, made by Spenser & Dinsmore of Indianapolis. It was $2,403 higher than that of the local contractor.

According to the contract which Mr. Winship signed, he will have to pay ten dollars forfeit for every day the building is not completed after the time he guaranteed to have it done. Mr. Winship was allowed to fix the time when he could finish the building. A. L. Gary, who acted as attorney for the township officials, believes that he has a contract that will stick. Often such contracts carrying a forfeit clause are declared illegal.

The eighth year commencement of the Andersonville school will be held tonight. A. J. Ross will deliver the address.

A seven pound boy was born to the wife of Jesse Smith at their home in South Pearl street yesterday afternoon.

Miss Flora Hall of Milroy underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Sexton sanatorium this morning and was said to be doing nicely this afternoon.

COTTA PLEADED GUILTY

Fined For Shipping Cattle Into State
Without Certificate.

John V. Cotta of Illinois, appeared before Judge Megee this morning and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of shipping cattle into this state without a certificate from the State Veterinarian. He was fined one dollar and costs. Cotta was indicted by the grand jury over a year ago. He shipped some cattle here for the Walker sale from Illinois and to do this a certificate of health must be first obtained from the state veterinarian. Cotta failed to do this and was indicted. The fine was paid. The case was set for trial Tuesday of next week. The case against Blain Fritch will come up Tuesday.

MILROY MASONS TO LAY CORNERSTONE

Will Have Charge of Services at Milroy School Building Thursday, June 19.

GRAND MASTER WILL SPEAK

The Masonic lodge of Milroy will have charge of the ceremonies when the cornerstone of the Milroy school building is laid. The date for the cornerstone laying has been set for Thursday, June 19 and it is expected that everything will be in readiness by that time. The first real work on the new building was started Wednesday when the concrete foundation was begun. The foundation of the old building was stone, but the new one will be concrete to the grade line. The force of men up to the present have been busy tearing away the ruins of the building that was destroyed by fire.

John W. Hanan of LaGrange, grand master of the masons of the state, will make the chief address at the cornerstone laying. It is probable that many Masons from here will attend. The program will be announced later.

REVIEWS TROUBLES OF KNIGHTSTOWN

W. H. Blodgett, Indianapolis News,
Recounts Story of Recent
"Blind Tiger" Raids.

YET SOME DISSATISFACTION

W. H. Blodgett, staff correspondent of the Indianapolis News, today contributes a column to the "blind tiger" troubles of Knightstown. He avers that there is a real drought in the own now since the fight that has been made there in the illicit joints.

The correspondent reviews the Vernon Wink case. It will be recalled he was the Knightstown druggist who was arrested twice for selling whiskey, was fined and his license finally revoked by the state board of pharmacy. Blodgett says the detective was a nice, dapper young man who posed as a book agent, and that he was brought to Knightstown by a wealthy citizen whose son had been coming home drunk.

The correspondent tells of other recent "blind tiger" raids there and says a colored man is now under surveillance. He declares there is some dissatisfaction because all of the operators have been given suspended sentences.

CROWD LAUGHS AT SCHOOL FARCE

Pupils of Country School in Home Talent Play Furnish Some Fun at Coliseum.

HOME TALENT ESSAYS, TOO

Village Band, School Teacher, Visitors and Kids Held Out on Closing Day Program.

More than a thousand people enjoyed "The Old School at Hick'ry Holler," a rural farce produced by the Loyal Daughters and the Young Men's Circle classes of the Main Street Christian Sunday school at the coliseum in the city park last night. Much of the credit for the success of the play is due Mrs. C. E. Waldon, who trained the players.

From the time the school kids marched along the old country road to the time of the closing exercises of the last day of school ended with a number by the Hick'ry Holler band, the audience was kept laughing.

To mention the ability of any of the amateurs over that of any other would be unfair because they all contributed their share to the fun. All types of the country school were represented in the cast of characters.

But Jim Henry Cobb (Bruce Beck) and Jacob Von Hoffenstein (Frank Priest) were the meanest boys in the school and they helped the fun along to considerable extent. Bruce Beck was the yellow kid on the canvas. It was he who left a snake on Teacher Joshua Toothacre's (Ben Sparks) chair and was summarily brought to justice when the Hick'ry Holler doctor brought the teacher back to consciousness. Jake was implicated in the plot and he, too, had to stand up alongside the teacher.

The audience was treated to a scene in the school room the morning of the last day, when the closing recitations were held. The classes in spelling and geography stood before the school and showed how little they knew about the subject in hand, and the primer grade was also given an opportunity to display its knowledge. The most impossible defini-

"Going It Blind"

We Americans are given credit for doing a great many things in haste; and our mothers and grandmothers used to tell us constantly, among the other good, old-fashioned admonitions, that "haste makes waste."

Is not this peculiarly true of most of us when we do our shopping? Do we not fail to give the subject of our year-in-year-out purchases all the intelligent thought and consideration due so important a matter?

And do we not as a result of this habit buy many things unwisely, things which aren't just right and which might have given far greater satisfaction if they had been decided upon with thrifty forethought?

It is on this account that we urge upon our readers the importance and economy of being well posted on the daily offerings of our advertisers.

One can not only plan one's expenditures with greater economy but can also make better and more satisfactory selections than when "going it blind"

PRESIDENT ANNOYED BY CURRENT STORIES

He Is Not Committed to a "Trust Busting" Policy.

Washington, June 7.—Neither with regard to the American Tobacco company and allied corporations, nor any other big business concerns, has the Wilson administration adopted any radical "trust busting" plan.

Great pains have been taken by the administration to make it clear that Attorney General McReynolds's suggestion for imposing a graduated excise tax on manufactures of tobacco had not been accepted by President Wilson. It was also made plain that the McReynolds plan was not intended as a suggestion for a general trust busting policy, but was put forward merely as a temporary expedient to meet an extraordinary situation.

The president not only has not committed himself to the support of an effort to have this plan incorporated in the Underwood tariff bill, but he has become distinctly impatient at the wide circulation given to reports that he is standing behind the McReynolds suggestion.

NEW TURN GIVEN SENATE INQUIRY

President Charged With Being a Lobbyist.

TOWNSEND SET OFF THE BOMB

When It Came Time For the Michigan Senator to Define What He Understood by the Word Lobbyist, That Statesman Pointed to President's Reputed Use of Patronage Club as an Example of Lobbying.

Washington, June 7.—In the hearing room of the lobby investigators Senator Townsend of Michigan, a Republican, touched off real bombs when he made the specific charge that President Wilson's use of patronage as a club to force Democratic senators to accept without question the Underwood bill just as it passed the house constituted in itself lobbying of an insidious character. The result is that the Democrats are confronted with a demand to investigate the president's activities in pushing the Underwood bill.

Senator Townsend's charge came when the eighth question on the regular list for senators was propounded, which reads:

"Do you know or have you any information of the use of money to maintain a so-called lobby here or elsewhere? In connection with your answer, state what you mean by the words 'lobby' and 'lobbyist'."

Mr. Townsend went into a somewhat lengthy definition of what he understood by the word lobby or rather lobbyist, and then said: "The nearest approach to undue influence which would come within my definition has been the influence exerted by the president and the use and power of the party secret caucus. I am convinced that some senators will vote in favor of the tariff bill and against proposed amendments because of the fear of antagonizing what is known as the power and influence of the administration."

"Do you mean to say that he is lobbying?" snapped Acting Chairman Reed, while Senators Cummins and Nelson sat back in their chairs with a look of pleased surprise on their faces.

"I am giving my definition," said Senator Townsend.

"You do not know of the existence of any lobby here?" asked Senator Walsh, Democrat.

"I do not," said Senator Townsend.

"But I understood you to say that the lobbying that had come under your consideration was some undue influence exercised by the executive over the members of congress."

Senator Townsend insisted that was the case.

Senator Walsh thereupon demanded that Senator Townsend name any single senator who had been the subject of executive influence.

"No," insisted Townsend. "I do not want to do that, because I think you know of it as well as I do."

Senator Walsh endeavored to pin Senator Townsend down to particulars, but Senator Townsend was not disposed to particularize. Senator Reed also endeavored to get from the witness a statement of fact regarding the senators whose patronage was being used as an inducement to secure favorable votes on the tariff bill, but Senator Townsend would only reiterate his belief that the presidential reference to a lobby had resulted in holding several faltering senators in line for the entire bill and against amendments.

At this time Senator Walsh introduced a motion which provided for the recall of witnesses who had previously testified at the hearing, but of whom questions as to executive coercion had not been asked. The motion was adopted unanimously. Its effect will be to enforce the recall to the stand of all the Democratic senators.

DANVILLE HARD HIT BY FLAMES

Public Square the Scene of Disastrous Blaze.

FIVE BUILDINGS DESTROYED

Starting in a Men's Furnishing Store, the Flames Spread With Such Rapidity That Five of the Chief Buildings on the North Side of the Square Were Wiped Out Before the Firemen Could Stay Their Greedy Progress.

Danville, Ind., June 7.—Fire destroyed five two-story brick buildings at the northeast corner of the street on the north side of the public square. The loss is estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000.

The fire started in the men's furnishing store of Brewer Hadley and spread with such great rapidity that it was feared the whole side of the square would be burned. However, by hard work, the firemen stayed the progress of the flames at the alley. Only the walls of the buildings remain standing. One building was not wholly destroyed.

The business houses that suffered were Edward Crawley with a saloon and restaurant in two different rooms; C. L. Thompson, druggist; L. A. Barnett, books and stationery; Bert Campbell, restaurant; G. L. Thompson, jewelry; Horace Millikan, barber; Dewey hotel, a rooming house; Walter Whyte, photographer; Dr. H. C. Sears, dentist, and a few small offices.

There were nine business houses in the quarter of the square. The stocks of goods in the burned building were carried into the streets, and the loss on stocks will not be heavy.

CONFESSED KILLING WIFE

Grand Jury Returns Formal Indictment Against Seth Lucas.

Richmond, Ind., June 7.—The grand jury has returned an indictment charging murder in the first degree against Seth Lucas, the Clay township farmer who confessed to killing his wife by setting fire to her clothing, after knocking her unconscious.

Prosecutor Reller said that Lucas's confession to Turnkey Miller at the county jail that he had killed Winfield Parker, a neighbor, five years ago and threw his body into an abandoned well was investigated. No indictment was returned owing to the fact that it has been indirectly reported to the prosecutor that Parker has been seen since his disappearance. The prosecutor said that the county would not go to the expense of removing the rocks and debris from the well, where Lucas alleges he placed Parker's body, until these reports have been thoroughly investigated.

In compliance with an act passed by the last legislature Judge Fox will appoint two physicians to examine Lucas to determine his sanity. For the past few days the man has been acting in a normal manner and has transacted some business with former neighbors. He has also abandoned his hunger strike.

HE GAVE FALSE TESTIMONY

Miami County Farmer Found Guilty of Perjury.

Peru, Ind., June 7.—Frank Hahn, a farmer, was found guilty of perjury by a jury. The verdict carries with it a sentence of two to twenty-one years. Hahn was charged with falsifying when he said on the witness stand in the Levi clover seed case that he found slips bearing his father's name in sacks of clover seed alleged to have been stolen from his father's barn the night it burned. In the Levi trial it was proved that the seed came from Decatur, Ill., and was stolen from a box car here.

SHE COULDN'T PUT IT OVER

The prince and his party traveled from Lewiston by trolley along the American side of the gorge. The prince is seventeen years old.

MADE RESTITUTION; BANK DROPPED CASE

Man Who Stole Million and a Half Acquitted.

Philadelphia, June 7.—The trusted employe of the Merchants Union Trust company, Walter Shourds, who robbed that bank of $1,500,000 in securities and $30,000 in cash, came into court here, confessed his crime, made restitution and Judge Hall ordered the bill of indictment submitted and a verdict of not guilty taken.

The only reason the state, the government and the bank dropped the case was because the officers of the institution robbed pleaded with the court that if they were not allowed to drop the case and get their stolen bonds back again, the bank would go to the wall. Shourds gave back all that he took and $5,000 in addition as salve for the injured feelings of the bank's directors.

Shourds, who was the superintendent of the vaults of the Merchants Union, disappeared with his loot in the month of September, 1912. News of the theft was suppressed because it was feared it would cause a run on the bank.

Through advertisements Shourds placed in Berlin, London and Paris newspapers, it was learned how communication could be established with Shourds. It was arranged that if Shourds should make restitution he would not be prosecuted.

Shourds has doubled the money in speculation abroad, it is said, and he has made a snug fortune. It is hinted that he is really now worth more money than he handed back.

EARTH WABBLES, SAYS SCIENTIST

Poles Travel In Circle of Sixty Feet Diameter.

SEVERAL OBSERVERS AGREE

Professor Hill of the Naval Observatory at Washington Has Spent Twenty Years on the Problem—Astronomers Throughout the World Confirm His Theories.

After twenty years of research Professor George A. Hill of the Naval Observatory at Washington, who has been working with other scientists all over the world, has deduced proof that the earth is wobbling on its axis.

"The poles of the earth," says Professor Hill, "are wobbling about, apparently at random, but confining their travels within a circle of sixty feet diameter. Should Peary again take the trip to the north pole he would find the flag which he planted there on his last trip of discovery nearly fifty feet from the spot which he would now point out as the true north pole of the earth."

"A point which is the north pole today is not the north pole of tomorrow. No one can predict where this nomadic pole will be the next minute, the next hour or the next year. The arctic explorer may pitch his tent somewhere within the circle of sixty feet and place his finger on what he supposes to be the pole."

Pole Always Moving.

"Like some living thing, the little point which has for more than a century attracted all sorts of men from various corners of the earth will be crawling away all the while."

"Its speed is worse than snail-like. It has never been observed to travel farther than four feet in one week. Sometimes it has required more than a month to travel a yard. In six months, however, it describes an irregular semicircle, but so far we have been able to determine no orbit or path of oscillation, and the only thing that we really know about it is that its position is never twice the same."

"The time required for the pole to make its irregular semicircle is about fourteen months. If it is twenty feet on one side of the charted pole today it will probably be thirty or forty feet on the other side seven months hence."

Working with Professor Hill in his investigations have been astronomers in observatories on nearly the same parallel of latitude as Washington. 38 degrees 54 minutes and 20.4 seconds. The most important stations are Gathesburg, Md.; Cincinnati, Lick observatory, in California; Mizusawa, in Japan; Tschardul, central Asia, Berlin and Carlsruhe, Italy.

The fact that the pole oscillates has been proved by comparison of observations. Each observer through two separate telescopes gazes at stars billions of miles distant. He selects a few which may be seen through his instruments by day as well as by night.

Stars Appear to Stagger.

Instead of following straight paths the stars appear to stagger across a set line and back again. The stars are to all intents and purposes stationary; therefore the position of the earth must be changing.

"Now, if our latitudes," says Professor Hill, "are slipping up and down over the earth like hoops over a barrel the poles of the earth must be changing."

"The axis of the earth is not still. It has two motions, one revolving, which accounts for day and night, and the other oscillating, the result of which we have not determined."

Students Make Their Own Change at

Soda fountain proprietors around Harvard square, at Cambridge, are doing business on the honor system this year, trusting to the purchasers to leave the correct amount for drinks consumed. In summer the students at Harvard consume on an average 10,000 ice cream sodas and sundaes a day.

At all the fountains on College square clerks serve the drinks, but take no money. The customer leaves the cash in a receptacle on the counter. Nobody is on hand to see that the drinkers pay. If it is necessary to make change the customer does that too. There is always enough cash in the receptacle to change anything under a five dollar bill.

The proprietors of all the fountains report that business has increased.

New Pygmy Tribe Also Discovered by Explorers.

An adventurous journey among pygmies of New Guinea was recently described before the British Royal Institution by Captain Cecil G. Rawling, says the New York Times. Of 400 men employed on the expedition, which was organized by the Ornithologists' union, assisted by the Royal Geographical society, only eleven lasted out to the end.

The party landed on the southwestern coast of Dutch New Guinea. They found the natives of the Mimika district anxious to trade, but unwilling to work. They flew to arms on the slightest provocation, men and women alike.

After many vicissitudes the expedition reached highlands occupied by a hitherto unknown pygmy tribe. The average height of the men is four feet eight and three-quarter inches. They are well made and wiry, while their color is a dark chocolate. The hair, which is unusually black, with sometimes a touch of brown or even red, is worn short. Many wore beards, the older men dyeing theirs a bright red.

Pushing on to the mountains inland, the party encountered the greatest precipice in the world, eighty miles or more in length, seamed with cracks and fissures, but to the eye undimbleable. The height, measured with a theodolite, was 6,500 feet.

The expedition took away a valuable collection after having accomplished the longest cross country journey ever undertaken in Dutch New Guinea.

INDIANS' RECORD OF FLOOD FOUND

"Speaking Rock" Discovered In Wyoming Canyon.

CHARACTERS ARE LEGIBLE.

Story, Protected by Overhanging Ledge, Is Complete and Well Preserved. Savage Artist Probably Had Heard the Genesis Account of Deluge From One of the Early Missionaries.

An Indian "speaking rock," bearing in the Indian sign language the tale of the flood and the ark, has been found by railroad surveyors high up on the smooth rocky sides of the canyon of the Wind river in Wyoming, 100 miles west of Casper.

The characters, protected by an overhanging ledge, are well preserved and perfectly legible. They are rudely cut or engraved in the granite face of the cliff and are so well protected that, unless obliterated by the hand of man, they probably will remain intelligible until the end of time.

When or by whom the characters were cut in the face of the cliff is a question none can answer, but the savage artist undoubtedly knew the story of the flood of Genesis, and in his rude picture writing has told it in a manner which none acquainted with the Indian's universal sign language can fail to read and understand.

This "speaking rock" was seen by white men—trappers for the Hudson Bay company—nearly a century ago and was reported to the factor at that time. But since then, except for an occasional Cheyenne or Crow Indian, the eye of man did not gaze upon it until the railroad surveyors discovered the hieroglyphics some time ago.

As told by the "speaking rock" the story sets forth that in the days more great suns (years) ago than the leaves of the forest oak—even before the earth had nourished an acorn—the Great Spirit became angered at the people of the earth; that he spoke in a great voice (thunder), awful fires flashed across the skies and torrents raged. The land became desolate. For more than a moon (month) the flood swept and everything was destroyed.

Ark Was a Canoe.

At last there came a calm, and a single canoe carrying a single human and much game appeared. This canoe drifted for a long time. At length one day the man, who was dressed in the skins of the white deer, sent forth a dove, which returned after three sleeps (nights) with a sprig of the red willow. The dove was a white one, the Indian bird of peace.

Then the canoe landed, and the man got out. The game, which was alive, leaped from the boat and ran into the forests, which by this time had again appeared.

It is supposed the Indian engraver picked up the story of the flood from some missionary in the southwest and was so struck with it that he wrote the characters on the great smooth side of the canyon. Many of these "speaking rocks" are to be found in the Rocky mountain country, the Indians often using that system in preserving a history of some great event in the tribe.

Another speaking rock which is a mystery is one to be seen at the Mount of the Holy Cross, in Colorado. The characters on this rock were printed and have been there since before the coming of white men to the Rocky mountains. Much of the writing has been obliterated by storms and shifting sands. What is left proves that originally the words were those of the Lord's Prayer.

The letters are about six inches long and two inches wide. The words still legible are "nanke (thou art) nicea kin wakandapi kie (thy name holy regarded shall) nitakicenze (thy kingdom come shall) nitowacn (thy will) econpi (be done) make (earth) anpetu kin de takuyultapi (today the food us give) wawitan (story) nitawa (name)."

Cross a Sign.

According to the Indians the great white cross on the mountain formed by canyons filled with snow and ice, was put there by the Great Spirit as a sign of pleasure at the coming of the white men into the lands of the Indians; that one season the cross disappeared (the heat of an unusually warm summer probably melted the snow) and that the Indian medicine men incited the warrior to war against the whites, setting forth that the sign of the Great Spirit's protection had been taken away.

That year occurred the outbreak which opened with the Meeker massacre. The story sets forth that after the following winter the cross reappeared and the Indians knew the Great Spirit had again turned his face toward the white people.

The Indians say that simultaneously with the reappearance of the great white cross the characters were fashioned on the canyon wall and the story of the Lord's prayer was told by hands not human.

The surveyors who discovered the hieroglyphics of the flood on the walls of the Wind river canyon will make pictures and drawings of the characters when next they pass through the great slash in the mountains. The men say the carvings are so high up on the walls that the artist must have been lowered from the top of the canyon by ropes.

Tariff Bill Views.

Republican congressmen have taken different views of the Underwood tariff bill. Representative Foss of Ohio hooted the idea that the proposed bill, when it becomes a law, would reduce the cost of living. Representative Smith of Minnesota took a different view of the situation. He said he did not feel that the tariff would cause a panic, but that it would injure the farmers, workingmen and small manufacturers, all of whom are the independent producers of the country.

Representative Samuel W. Smith came to the point. He asked if the Democratic majority could point to any piece of free trade or tariff-for-revenue-only legislation that did not bring disaster. Neither is it possible to get any hope or consolation from the fact that every piece of similar legislation has brought about conditions like we had in 1837, in 1857, and in the nineties.

"You say this bill will reduce the cost of living," said Representative Foss. "I want to say to you that you do not reduce the price of living by reducing the protection accorded to the farmer. You reduce the price to the farmer of the article he sells; but are you sure that the consumer who ultimately consumes will get the product any cheaper than before?"

You took the tariff off of hides and promised cheap shoes, but shoes have gone up in price. You now take the tariff off of sugar. Sugar will take wings as soon as the price is under the control of an importer. You take the tariff off of wool for the sake of cheap clothing. Watch the process of price reduction. You take the tariff off of flour in order to cheapen the price and give free bread. You thereby feed the flour mills of Canada at the frightful expense of our own mills, to the advantage of foreign mills, which, when they have accomplished their purpose, can put up the price of flour as in the case of sugar.

There is one almost certain way this bill will reduce the price of foodstuffs. When the effect of this elaborate and skillfully planned assault upon the industries of the country where existence seems to be an offense, oft expressed by various members on the other side of this chamber, when the inevitable crippling of these industries shall displace thousands of laborers or greatly reduce their wages by either an actual cut or reduction of time, thus reducing the greatest factor of consumption in this country, then prices will come down—not because of more production, but because of the destruction of the ability to consume. Here is the viciousness of this proposed legislation. The advocates of this bill openly assail every man who resents the assault upon the business of the country with the charge that he favors the special interests as against the people. This tone has dominated this debate from the very opening day. When we plead for the maintenance of the integrity of business, that our capital may employ labor and thus continue the prosperity now so general, we are met with the open charge that we plead the cause of special interests, while they stand for the consumer—the mass of the people. This is mere claptrap.

Who is the consumer? What does he want? His greatest desire is to be secure in his ability to secure what he needs. This ability is found in a system that concerns itself with the common interests of both the producer and the consumer, not a policy that blindly stifles production in the belief that by so doing it will assist consumption.

"HOD DICKETY DOG" HAS JUST HIT NEW YORK CITY

he picked it up and shot it into a song. First thing you knew nearly everyone in town was saying and singing Hitehy Koo. Nobody knew what it meant. They cared less. Crazy lot of folk, "we all are." But that expression paved the way for Wolfe Gilbert. He has written all the best songs in town since then. Waiting for the Robt. E. Lee, Swan-see Shore, Here Comes My Daddy Now, I've Been Through the Mill, Ragging the Baby to Sleep, and scores of others.

"Old Black Diamond, who bit off Henry Clevenger's ear and stole a pair of pants from Will Bliss, was a right and left handed user of the expression "Hod Dickety Dog." Maybe it will be immortalized yet. I'm going to tell Gilbert about it anyway.

"I enjoy reading the Republican very morning. It serves as a letter from home, and is responsible for me neglecting all my friends with whom I had corresponded. I read the Republican religiously, even to the ads. John Buck Tompkins' ads make a big hit here. Every once in a while I cut out one and paste it on the city editor's bulletin board. John Buck always gets every hand in the house, and this is no lie."

The Milroy dispatch reads like this: George Stoner came back from his week's visit to Indianapolis today with some new bits of slang, which already have swept Rush and Shelby counties and are the most popular things known here since "The Banks of the Wabash" first saw the light.

"I suppose those city fellows kidded the life out of you, hey, George?" asked Henry Tolliff, who met Stoner at the interurban station.

"Hod dickety dog," said Stoner. "What's that?" asked Tolliff. Didn't they get any change out of you?"

"Didn't you hear me say 'Hod dickety dog'?" asked the traveler. "What's the matter with you rubes, anyway? Everybody who is anybody knows that that means I'm jerry; I'm hep; I connect. When you try to kid a fellow and he says 'Hod dickety dog,' that means that the bunk bounces off of him. Are you next?"

"I get you," said Tolliff thoughtfully.

"Lemme tell you something more; 'Hod dickety dog' will be all the rage in New York before winter. All good slang, like everything else, comes from Indiana and travels East, and this is going fast. 'Round the Stanton House, there in Indianapolis there was a bunch of traveling men, and they gave me a line on the correct slang in various parts of the country; it's different in different cities. For instance, 'I should worry,' has the call in almost every city. It's especially popular in Boston, and in New York they don't know anything else. It isn't very old—it's a Jewish expression and was born about the same time as the Talmud. A fellow who sells bunion plasters for a Denver house was telling me that out his way if a person doesn't care about the subject under discussion he says, 'It's mush to me.'"

"Now, out in San Francisco, the most popular word is 'the old jazz.' It means anything you may happen to want it to. There was a St. Louis man there who thought that he was real cute. He was trying to kid me and just to show him I was wise I said 'Hod dickety dog.' 'I see you're here with the gazipe,' he says. Get it?"

"Hod dickety dog," said Tolliff, nodding.

"Down in New Orleans they say, I think I'll make a little dodo," meaning they're going to hunt the hay or go to sleep. I got a lot more that I'll tell you some other time."

"Get into any gambling houses, George?" asked his friend. Stoner winked.

"Lose much?"
"Me? Hod dickety dog."

Preceding the fable from Milroy is a collection of slang which is labeled "Best Sellers in City Slang:" Indianapolis—"Hod dickety dog." Boston—"I should worry."

San Francisco—"Are you jerry to the old jazz?"

Denver—"It's mush to me."

St. Louis—"Gazipe."

New Orleans—"Make a little dodo!"

FALMOUTH MAN IS ACQUITTED

Alfred Collyer Denies Charge of Obstructing a Highway and Wins
His Case.

TRIED IN CONNERSVILLE

Proves by Commissioners That he Had Privileges to Construct a Drive.

The case of the State vs. Alfred Collyer, of Falmouth, was tried before Justice William Frank, Friday, says the Connersville News. Collyer, who operates a store at Falmouth, was charged by the State with obstructing a county ditch. Oliver McGraw, of that place, was the prosecuting witness.

The trouble developed over a ditch formerly used as a county waterway. Several years ago a new ditch was dug, and since that time the old one has not been used. A number of years ago Mr. Collyer wished to build a driveway to his store. He asked the County Commissioners' permission to fill the old channel up. The Commissioners, who then were Horace L. Hurst, J. M. White and the late W. D. Thomas, gave him such permission, providing he would place a tile passageway under the bridge. This Collyer did.

Last spring during the flood period the tile channel, which was eighteen inches in diameter, proved not large enough to carry all the water. The hole became clogged with waste and the nearby lots were flooded. It seems that the McGraw yard and barnyard were under water, but little real damage resulted. Both commissioners testified that they remembered giving Mr. Collyer permission to fill the ditch.

A number of witnesses were examined for both sides, and after hearing the evidence Judge Frank found the defendant not guilty. Attorney F. E. Nevin appeared for the defense.

The Perfect Construction of a Buggy Depends on the Small Details

That is why our buggies are the ones that give long road service. Every small detail is looked after. There is not a screw or a bolt left out that would add strength to any part. No pains or material spared to make these buggies the best that can be built. Look at one of them and you will see that it is braced in every place that would give it added strength. Every place that is in the habit of breaking on other vehicles is re-enforced on the buggies we sell and there is just as much difference between a vehicle we sell and the other kind you see as there is between a tailor-made suit of clothes and a cheap manufactured one, because every buggy we sell is built to our own special specifications and that is how we get the road service. By experience we have learned where to re-enforce a buggy to make it wear. If you want a buggy that is built right, looks right, and is right in every detail of construction, we want your business.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with
Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with phosphate powder:

68 1/4 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

NEW BAGGAGE RULES EFFECTIVE

Forty-Five Inches is Longest Trunk That Will be Hauled Without Excess Charge.

ARE DIFFICULT TO HANDLE

Rushville and Rush county people who are planning to take a vacation trip or visit friends this summer may be interested to know something of the new baggage rules which went in effect on all railroads in the United States this week. According to the new rules trunks of limited dimensions will be received for transportation free of charge with the ticket.

Forty-five inches is the longest trunk that may be carried as free baggage, and a ban is placed upon trunks with bulging sides or bottom designed so that it must stand in a certain position so the gowns or hats will travel right side up. It may be some time, however, before the "freak trunks" can be refused as notice is required in order to reject them lawfully. Five pounds for each inch over forty-five inches is the rate of excess charge that will be levied under the new rules. The railroad company, it is said, made the new regulations as trunks of all description and sizes are offered for transportation and often the baggage men have difficulty in handling them.

Mrs. A. L. Gary, who has been in the Sexton sanatorium for several weeks following an operation, was taken to her home in North Harrison street this afternoon.

READY TO GIVE UP SEARCH

Detectives Despair of Finding Little Newcastle Girl.

More than eleven weeks have passed since the disappearance from Newcastle of little Catherine Winters and after all the effort has been made to find her the mystery as to her whereabouts or fate is as deep as ever. The Newcastle Times says that last Saturday Detective Lunt made a report on a clue to Mayor Barnard and gave promise of stating revelations, but this clue has been found to lead nowhere and the detective is greatly discouraged and seems to see no hope of finding the child. Two Newcastle men are quietly having a clue run down out in California at their own expense. They have little faith in it and so are saying little about it until it is investigated.

MANY RESIDENTS ARE USING SALVOY

Knightstown People Find New Preparation Better Than Oil For Keeping Dust Down.

AND WILL NOT TRACK EITHER

Dr. O. E. Holloway, of this city, has substituted Salvoy, or granulated chloride of lime, instead of oil to keep down the dust along the half square in Jefferson street along his business property says the Knightstown Banner. George Watts has also used a quantity of the material in front of his West Main street property. It is also being used by W. S. Garrison and R. W. Wagoner on the roadway in front of their homes, in North Washington street, and others are using or are preparing to use this preparation to allay the dust.

It is argued that Salvoy is just as good to keep down the dust as oil and even better, and costs less than oil. The average cost per block for Salvoy runs to about $7, whereas oil would cost $15. It is shipped in sealed barrels, and when applied it begins to take up moisture in the air, after which it forms a hard, smooth surface for the street. No oiling has as yet been done in Knightstown this year, and now that Salvoy has been introduced it is not likely that much oil will be used. Before it becomes packed oil is next to a nuisance, inasmuch as it tracks so easily. Many a fancy gown has been ruined where streets were oiled.

TAKES NOTICE OF OWN NEGLIGENCE

located farther east. The water continues to seep through the brick and flows down the gutter.

For years and years the city has yelled about the consumer wasting water, and never once did it take into consideration its own neglect. At the water and light plant some years ago a pipe was erected so that the street sprinkling could be filled with water from Flatrock and in this manner not use the city's supply for sprinkling the streets before they were swept. During the winter this pipe froze and the valve burst. It has never been repaired and the last few times that the streets have been swept the city water was used for sprinkling purposes. Although the valve on this pipe has been broken for several months no effort has been made to replace it with a new one and the consumer continues to suffer for lack of water and the officials wonder what becomes of the supply.

COTTON SUCCESSFULLY
CULTIVATED IN WEST.

Certain Varieties Thrive in Arizona and California.

The experiment of growing Durango cotton in the Imperial valley of California is proving successful, according to reports made by Argyle McLachlan, assistant in crop acclimatization, to the department of agriculture.

Durango cotton is a long staple upland variety of cotton which is apparently well adapted to conditions in the Imperial valley and elsewhere in California and Arizona. The experiments are in their third year, having been begun in 1911 on three acres of land near El Centro. In 1912, 200 acres were planted by six growers from seed grown by the original planter, W. E. Willis.

Between 6,000 and 7,000 acres will be planted to Durango cotton in the Imperial valley in 1913. In fact, all the available supply of Durango seed in Texas was bought, and a much larger average would be planted this year if more seed could be obtained. It is estimated that about 20,000 acres more will be planted to short staple cotton, chiefly of the Mebane variety. This estimate of 26,000 or more acres includes acreages to be planted in Lower California adjoining the Imperial valley.

The government has been conducting experiments for several years in growing Egyptian cotton in Arizona. Last year 300 acres were seeded in the Salt River valley, and the acreage has been materially increased in 1913. This cotton has not sold lower than 21 cents a pound and has brought as high as 30 cents, the planters clearing $50 to $60 an acre.

BAD EGG IS "IN BAD" AGAIN.

Government Exposes It in a Comprehensive Bulletin.

The economic undesirability of the bad egg has been set forth by the department of agriculture in a bulletin entitled "The Care of the Farm Egg." To the ignorance of the farmer and producer and not to the buyer and shipper is attributed the greatest part of the annual loss of millions of dollars in spoiled eggs.

"Every year there is a loss of millions of dollars in bad eggs," the report states, "the direct result of haphazard methods of production, marketing and shipping. The greater part of this loss is due mainly to ignorance or indifference on the part of the farmer and producer, and only a small part is caused by carelessness on the part of the buyer and shipper."

The bulletin reviewed the work of experimental stations and state agricultural colleges in eliminating the losses and said that "on every hand an interest is being manifested in improving the conditions in all branches of poultry work." A general reform in the handling of the egg from the nest to the breakfast table is outlined in the bulletin.

HATPIN BAN IN AUSTRIA.

Women With Dangerous Spikes in Headgear Can't Ride on Trains.

The Austrian ministry of railways has issued an order that women wearing unprotected hatpins shall not be permitted to ride on the Austrian state railways until they have removed the perilous pins. The management of the Vienna municipal railways has gone even further in directing tramcar conductors to compel such offenders to leave the car immediately. If they refuse the conductor will call in the police to remove them by force.

Some months ago an order was issued that conductors should request women to remove their hatpins when these threatened to prove dangerous to the other passengers. But the conductors apparently were unwilling to engage in acrimonious discussions with women passengers over the length of their hatpins, and the order produced no effect. And so to make it easier for the conductors they are now directed simply to turn out the wearers of long hatpins the moment they step on the car.

WIRELESS WRITING MACHINE.

Californian Invents Wonderful Telegraphic Apparatus.

A wireless telegraph that writes the messages automatically as it receives them from the air is the latest triumph of inventive genius.

The invention is that of W. C. Cutler of Sawtelle, Cal. The first message under Cutler's test traveled four and one-half blocks.

With his wireless apparatus packed in a grip he passed four days experimenting in Coachella valley. There he succeeded in transmitting, receiving and writing messages by wireless over a distance of four miles.

Improving the New Nickel.

Fearing that the words "five cents" on the new nickel might be too easily worn off in circulation, William C. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, has ordered that the words be brought out in greater relief.

Breeding Ground For Birds.

President Wilson has by executive order set apart two islands in Walters lake, Arkansas, for use by the department of agriculture as a breeding ground for native birds.

Great Singer to Retire.

INSPIRING STORIES OF HEROISM
IN REPORT ON CARNEGIE FUND

Noble Brave Are of All Ages and From Many Walks of Life.

Total of 723 Identified and Rewarded by Commission in Nine Years.

HEROISM.

So nigh to grandeur is our dust,
So near is God to man,
When Duty whispers low, "Thou must,"
The youth replies, "I can."
—Emerson.

A COLLECTION of inspiring stories of heroism is the report just issued by the Carnegie hero fund commission on the work done during its nine years of existence. Of particular interest are the 142 pages devoted to brief recapitulations of the deeds of heroes who received awards.

The report shows that a total of 723 heroes and heroines have been identified, proved and honored by the commission since its foundation. These noble brave were of all ages, ranging from tenderest childhood to venerable persons nearing the limit of life.

They come from nearly all the races into which humanity has been divided, and every one of them seems to have acted without one moment's delay, often in the face of frightful odds. Most of the deeds of heroism were in the rescue of drowning swimmers, skaters, flood victims or shipwrecked mariners; many were at fires, others in saving miners from crumbling earth and rock and firebrand explosions.

There were many cases of men fallen unconscious upon electric wires carrying high current. Some of these were saved alive, but in many cases the injured and their would be rescuers perished together.

Perhaps the most remarkable instance in the record was the death of Lincoln J. Partridge at Bristol, Me., on Nov. 23, 1912. George D. Tarr, a fisherman sixty-two years old, cried for help when his clothing had caught in a belt wheel. Partridge reached over a circular saw making 1,500 revolutions a minute, slipped, fell and was cut in twain. Twenty-five dollars a month was awarded to his widow, with $5 a month to each of his children. A silver medal was given also.

It is the rule to award a medal, whether of gold, silver or bronze, to deserving heroes and to give money when money is needed for the support of the hero's family—if he has died of his heroic act—or for educational purposes or to purchase a home. There is no thought of mere reward in the giving of the money.

As Mr. Carnegie phrases the idea, "I do not expect to stimulate or create heroism by this fund, knowing well that heroic action is impulsive, but I do believe that if the hero is injured in his bold attempt to serve or save his fellows he and those dependent upon him should not suffer pecuniarily thereby."

Thorough Investigation.

In every case reported to the commission a searching investigation is made into all the facts, so that we may be sure that every one included in the commission's list of heroes is genuine. Here is a typical case:

W. Roy Stokes, aged twelve, schoolboy, died attempting to save Lorena J. Sarah G., and Charlotte Kenly, aged twelve, thirteen and eight, respectively, from drowning at Carol, Pa., Jan. 18, 1908. The girls, none of whom could swim, were together on the ice on a reservoir, when the ice broke and they fell into the water. nine feet deep.

Stokes, who could not swim well and who knew that the ice in the vicinity of the hole was not safe, skated to the hole from a point 400 feet distant. Lying face downward, he pulled Lorena up on the ice, and then one of them, or Stokes and Lorena together, attempted to pull one of the other girls out, when they fell into the water. All were drowned.

A silver medal was given in honor of the boy, and $1,000 was bestowed to help his father and mother. In the strange case that follows a silver medal only was awarded:

Austin M. Morgan, aged fifty-five, real estate dealer, saved William E. Mason, aged thirty-two, minister, from assassination at Cleburne, Tex., Dec. 7, 1907. In the dark Mason was attacked in his yard by a man with a revolver, who fired twice at him, one shot plowing through his scalp.

The man then shot Morgan's mother and his wife. Mason, calling for help, ran toward Morgan's home, pursued by the assassin. Morgan heard the shots and calls for help and ran from his home to the street with his revolver in his hand.

When Mason was within six feet of Morgan the assassin fired again, the bullet striking Morgan, who fell at Morgan's feet. With their revolvers but two feet apart Morgan and the assassin exchanged shots, neither being hit, and the latter then turned and ran from the scene. The wounds of the injured were of a serious nature, but all recovered.

Cecil K. Karberg, a reporter, nineteen years old, who could swim very little, tried to save Dorothy McGrew, who was being swept away into the Pacific ocean off La Jolla, Cal., on Aug. 6, 1911. Karberg died of heart disease as he swam. A bronze medal and $500 were awarded to his mother.

Ernest E. Boggess, aged thirty-two, machinist, attempted to save Ray S. Utter, aged twenty, machinist, from burning at Hood River, Ore., May 18, 1910. Utter was working at a gasoline brazing machine in a machine shop when a stream of burning gasoline spurted from the tank. His clothing was ignited, and the building was set on fire.

With his arms across his face, Utter backed into a corner and crouched to get out of the flame. Boggess ran to Utter from an adjoining room, passing through the stream of gasoline flame, which was then six inches in diameter.

Ran Through Fire.

Utter was somewhat bewildered, and Boggess put his arm around him and assisted him toward a place of safety. They passed through the stream of fire and through flames which rose from the floor, but before Boggess could get Utter from the building Utter expired.

Boggess escaped, but he was so severely burned that he was disabled forty-four days. He received a bronze medal, $425 disablement benefits and $1,000 for a worthy purpose.

True courage needs nothing of the weakness of age, as witness this incident taken from page 149 of the commission's report:

Richard S. Stokes, aged seventy-four, retired, saved Lillie B. Evetts, aged fifteen; R. Ashley Greaves, aged twenty-one, assistant bank cashier, and Eva Foster, aged fourteen, from drowning at Lometa, Tex., July 19, 1911. Greaves and Miss Foster, who could not swim, stepped into swift, deep water in the Colorado river, thirty feet from the bank, and went down. When they came up they clutched each other and called for help, and Stokes, not heeding the calls of his wife and daughter not to do so, swam toward them.

Miss Evetts, who could not swim, stepped into the deep water shortly after Greaves and Miss Foster. When Stokes was near Miss Evetts she grasped his collar with one hand. He continued to the others. Greaves threw one arm around Stokes' neck from the side opposite Miss Evetts, and Miss Foster clung to Greaves. Stokes swam fifteen feet diagonally across the current to a narrow ledge, where he stood in water reaching to his chin.

Miss Foster became unconscious just as they reached the ledge, but help arrived almost simultaneously, and the rescued were taken to shore. Stokes was very tired. He received a silver medal and $1,000.

Here is another dauntless old man, whose achievement appears on page 147:

Michael O'Loughlin, aged sixty-eight, laborer, attempted to save Patrick McMahon, aged sixty-two, laborer, from suffocation at Stoneham, Mass., Oct. 11, 1909. O'Loughlin descended into a sewer manhole to McMahon, who had been overcome by gas at the bottom, over eight feet below the surface of the ground.

O'Loughlin was overcome before he could render McMahon any assistance. Both men were got out and were revived. O'Loughlin, lost his life a year later in another sewer accident. A bronze medal and $1,200 were bestowed upon his widow.

Fought Mad Bull.

Slightly younger and of a wonderful agility was the hero of the following:

Biddle Hiles, aged fifty-six, bank cashier, saved Walenty Szymkowski from an enraged bull at Salem, N. J., June 11, 1910. Szymkowski entered a pasture and was attacked by the bull and knocked to the ground. He clung to the bull's neck while it tried to toss and gore him.

Hiles entered the pasture from a road and went to Szymkowski's aid with a four foot fence rail, with which he struck the bull on the nose. Szymkowski let go of the bull when Hiles shouted to him to do so, staggered to a fence and escaped from the pasture.

The bull charged at Hiles, and he struck at it again. Backing toward the fence, Hiles continually beat the bull with the rail as the animal made short charges toward him. When he reached the fence Hiles struck the bull three rapid blows, and while it was somewhat dazed he vaulted the fence.

Szymkowski had been gored in the thigh, his clothes had been ripped open, and he had a number of flesh wounds and bruises. Hiles did not care to accept any money, but he did take a bronze medal.

Sarah H. Killikelly, seventy years old, author and educator, saved Mary E. Kilgallon, aged twenty-six, from burning to death at Pittsburgh, Sept. 23, 1908. With her clothing a mass of flames the maid ran through the house calling for help. Miss Killikelly threw her to the floor and smothered the flames with a rug, her hands being badly burned. The maid suffered very serious burns of the body generally. Miss Killikelly received a silver medal and a pension of $75 a month for life. There are in the record many instances of the heroism of negroes. Here is one:

Martha Generals (colored), aged fifty-seven, a housewife, rescued Peter M. Malkemes, nine years old, from electrocution at Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 29, 1906. Unable to release his hold of an electric light wire carrying 2,200 volts, the boy was being jerked about when Mrs. Generals grabbed him by the neck and received a shock which temporarily paralyzed her arm.

She appealed to bystanders to aid the boy, but none responded. Then she grasped him again and succeeded in pulling him free from the wire. Her hand was disabled for a week. The boy's hand was badly burned. Mrs. Generals received a bronze medal and a life pension of $20 a month.

A Thrilling Rescue.

One of the most thrilling instances of heroism is this, found on page 97 of the report:

Thomas W. Moran, aged forty-two, contractor, saved Anna Z. Eggers, aged twenty-eight, from an impending fatal fall at Pittsburgh, Sept. 4, 1910. Moran, by sticking his fingers and the toes of his shoes into the meshes of a wire lattice screen inclosing the porches of a hospital, managed to reach the woman, who was insane and was trying to escape.

He reached her as she stood on a two inch ledge of the screen, forty-two feet above the ground, threw his arm around her waist and got behind her to keep her from falling. Moran held her about twenty minutes, during which time she struggled to free herself. He felt himself growing weak and called for help.

Firemen dropped a noosed rope from the roof, and Moran and another man who had climbed the screen fastened the rope around the woman, and she was hoisted and taken into the building. The rope was lowered again, and Moran tied it about himself and was lowered to the ground. He received a bronze medal and $1,000.

William H. Edwards, commissioner of street cleaning for New York, knocked down and captured the powerful lunatic, Gallagher, who shot Mayor William J. Gaynor on board the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse at Hoboken Aug. 9, 1910.

No mention is made in the report of Mr. Edwards' heroism in saving Gallagher from the angry crowd that was going to drown him. Mr. Edwards got a silver medal for saving Mayor Gaynor's life.

A silver medal was awarded to the heroine of this tragedy:

Marie V. B. Langdon, aged twenty, housewife, saved Sophie, Henry L. and Estella M. and attempted to save Gertrude S. Jacques, aged twenty-one, four, one and two respectively, from freezing at Telma, Wash., Jan. 11, 1907. With the thermometer 14 degrees below zero and the snow six feet deep. Mrs. Langdon, without snowshoes, went 600 feet from her home on hearing cries for help and met Mrs. Jacques and two of her children, only partly clad, who had fled from their burning home.

She relieved the woman of the baby and carried it to her home, followed by the mother, returned and got Henry and then struggled through the snow about three-quarters of a mile, where Gertrude was found, the mother having been compelled to abandon her after having removed the only skirt she wore and wrapping it around the child. When Mrs. Langdon had carried Gertrude halfway to the house she discovered that the child was dead and was compelled to abandon the child, as her own strength was rapidly failing. She was barely able to reach the house.

Vain Martyrdom.

Men of all walks of life are among the heroes, as witness the following from page 121 of the report:

William McSweeney, aged thirty-six, bartender, died attempting to save Charlotte J. O'Brien, aged twenty-eight, from drowning at Utica, N. Y., Nov. 4, 1911. McSweeney dived and swam about seventy feet toward Mrs. O'Brien, who, unable to swim, was drifting downstream in the Erie canal at night in water eight feet deep. When within six feet of Mrs. O'Brien McSweeney sank and was drowned. Mrs. O'Brien was rescued by men who extended a pole to her.

Fifty-five dollars a month was awarded for the support of McSweeney's widow and children, with a bronze medal in honor of his great sacrifice.

Every page of the commission's report is worth reading. Beside some of the wonderful stories of heroism related there the imaginings of the most fervid novelists seem pale and dull.

FEAR FOR RUSSIAN DUMA.

Believed Reactionaries Are Trying to Dissolve It.

The dissolution of the duma is believed to be imminent. The reactionaries say it has been too independent, and the Conservative party has begun to deliberate secretly on the question of dissolution.

It is said to be the plan of the bureaucracy to have the duma replaced by the "zemski sobor," a consultative chamber composed of great landowners. These landlords, through the cabinet, already are exercising almost absolute power throughout Russia, but they are averse to criticism of their actions by the chamber which even in the smallest degree is representative of the people.

Walked 54,000 Miles.

A trackwalker on the Pennsylvania railroad for ten years has walked 54,000 miles and spent $660 for shoes. He has quit to take a job tending gate at a crossing where he can sit down at his work.

BANKER'S FIGHT AGAINST DEATH

Pitiable Struggle Watched by Whole Nation.

TOOK POISON BY MISTAKE.

Deadly Mercurial Drug Worked Slowly, but Surely, While Physicians and Nurses Tried in Vain to Check Its Effects, and the Patient and His Friends Hoped Against Hope.

A real life drama, which caught and held the attention of the nation as perhaps no play on the boards has ever done, was the recent struggle of B. Sanders Walker, a young banker of Macon, Ga., against inevitable death.

Mr. Walker, who was married and had one little son, took one night a seven grain tablet of bichloride of mercury, mistaking it for a headache remedy. The error was not discovered until several hours later. Nothing then could be done to counteract the poison, which, if not removed from the system a short time after it is taken, defies all medical skill.

Mr. Walker's first intimation of trouble was severe pain which rapidly grew worse. He called a physician and, after a brief examination, was told as gently as possible that his death must ensue within a few days, perhaps within a few hours.

Stunned by the fact at first, Mr. Walker soon recovered his composure and began arranging his business affairs. He called an attorney and made his will. Then he conferred with business associates, disposing of all matters that had been under his direct supervision. After that he threw his home open to the citizens of Macon and held "open house" to bid them all farewell.

As soon as the nature of Mr. Walker's illness was discovered the best physicians available were called to attend him. A corps of nurses also arrived at the home, and from that time on the struggle was on in earnest.

Hope of Recovery.

Mr. Walker was repeatedly sweated in the hope that the poison might be removed from his system. He was also given intravenous injections of salt water at frequent intervals, and once in twelve hours the physicians fed him a pint of olive oil.

There was a temporary improvement, and both Mr. Walker and his friends began to hope against hope that he would throw off the powerful poison.

"I'll win out yet," he said cheerfully when informed that his condition had improved slightly. The physicians informed him that no person in his condition had been known to live longer than twenty-one days after taking the poison, but he held to life until the last ray of hope was gone.

News of Mr. Walker's valiant battle with death was telegraphed to every important city of the country and scattered broadcast by the press, bulletins on his condition being sent out twice or more each day.

In return from all parts of the nation telegrams were sent to the Walker home by physicians and others who had had experience with similar cases. From Johns Hopkins medical school at Baltimore emanated the suggestion that Mr. Walker's life might be saved if one of his kidneys could be removed and replaced by another from the body of a person recently dead. Mercurial poison paralyzes the kidneys, the physicians pointed out; hence the only hope was to transplant a healthy organ.

Dr. Alexis Carrel has transplanted the kidneys of dogs, and the animals operated on soon recovered. Dr. Carrel is reported to have said a similar operation is possible on the human body. By the time that suggestion reached Macon, however, Mr. Walker was so weak that he could not have survived the surgical shock of the operation.

Beginning of the End.

Gradually the poison did its deadly work. Mr. Walker grew weaker, and his pulse increased to an alarming rate. Still he kept up his courage, often getting out of bed and going to the window to wave to the friends who gathered in great crowds in front of the house.

Prayers for Mr. Walker's recovery were offered in all the churches of Macon and in many other cities. The vigilance of the nurses was unrelenting, and every suggestion coming from reputable sources was tried by the physicians in attendance.

Shortly after the last sunset Mr. Walker was ever to see he called a nurse to his bed and asked her what the physicians had said in a whispered consultation a few minutes earlier.

"Did they say I must die?" he asked. "If so don't hesitate to tell me. I am not afraid to die. My only regret is that I must leave my family."

The nurse, unable to answer his piteous appeal, turned away. The doomed man had guessed aright. Then he became unconscious, and several hours later he peacefully breathed his last. When the news of his death went forth the entire city of Macon went into mourning for him.

Mr. Walker spent most of his last hours of consciousness playing with his little son and trying to give his young wife courage for the shock of his death, which he knew was soon to come.

JAPANESE PACT

Treaty With England Not the Only One Threatened.

CHAMBERLAIN GAINS CONVERTS

Oregon Senator's Stand on the Question of Renewing the Arbitration Treaty With England Not Only Is Being Adopted by Other Senators, but Senator Works Introduced Jap Question Into the Discussion.

Washington, June 7.—There is serious likelihood, it has been developed in the senate, that the renewed arbitration treaty with Great Britain will fail of ratification or at least will be amended in such a way that Great Britain will be unable to accept it. Such a development, in view of the fact that an identical treaty with France already has recently been ratified, undoubtedly would be regarded as an affront by the English people.

Not only is the arbitration treaty with Great Britain in jeopardy, but strong intimation was conveyed to the senate that there will be opposition to the renewal of a limited arbitration treaty with Japan. Japan already has signified her willingness to renew this convention, which expires in September.

Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, who prevented the ratification of the new treaty with Great Britain and thus forced the senate to rescind favorable action upon identical treaties with Italy and Spain in order to avoid giving offense to England, has gathered considerable strength to his side. Among the senators who came to his support when another effort was made to ratify the treaty were O'Gorman of New York, Newlands of Nevada, Lewis of Illinois, Pomerene of Ohio, Democrats; Crawford of South Dakota, Works of California, Borah of Idaho and Bristow of Kansas, Republicans.

"Mr. Works of California was the senator who introduced the Japanese question. He declared that the United States was now seriously handicapped in its domestic affairs as the result of its treaty obligations entered into without proper deliberation. He added that the recent Japanese trouble proved this fact.

"It is my opinion that these treaties will not be ratified in their present form," said Senator Chamberlain. "They must be amended to exclude any possible obligations upon the United States to arbitrate the question of the Panama canal tolls. I feel absolutely certain that the treaties cannot be ratified. As to my reason for the abrogation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which has been temporarily shelved in the committee on foreign relations, I am not so particular about it."

Senator Chamberlain met the statements by friends of the treaty that it would not impose an obligation upon the United States to arbitrate the canal tolls question by reading a published interview or address made by Earl Grey, the British foreign minister, in which he made the claim that under the treaty the United States would be compelled to arbitrate the tolls question.

Dunkards Resist Overtures to Modify Some of Their Forms.

Warsaw, Ind., June 7.—The annual conference of the Church of the Brethren has closed at Winona Lake. It is estimated at least 150,000 attended during the ten days' session. Next year the Dunkards will meet at Seattle.

At the closing sessions many questions of national interest were decided. The use of tobacco in any form was voted down unanimously. A motion to do away with the holy kiss was lost. The movement to change the style of dress, while well supported, was lost, and the plain garb of the past will continue to distinguish Dunkard church members from members of other denominations. A plan to elect members of the standing committee for three years was thwarted because it conflicted with the Dunkard ideas of democracy.

SAY CALIFORNIA LAW IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

This Seems to Be Japan's Chief Contention.

Washington, June 7.—A declaration from Tokio that the Japanese note in the California alien land dispute contains the charge that the state law is in violation of the fourteenth amendment of the federal constitution was received with great interest here. It was generally concluded that this was the charge to which President Wilson referred when he said the Japanese note opened the way to interesting negotiations.

The amendment provides among other things that no state shall "deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of its laws."

Despite the interest manifested in the disclosure from Tokio there was little disposition to believe that Japan has struck firm ground in basing her protest on the alleged violation of the provisions of the constitutional amendment. It is the general opinion here that in sticking to the treaty and also in claiming that the California law is discriminatory against the Japanese race in principle and in intent, Japan is likely to make out a stronger case for herself.

THEIR STABLES LOOK PROMISING

Rushville Horsemen Training at Cambridge City Have a Number of Good Prospects.

Frank Lindsay Has String of Fourteen Which he Counts Best he Ever Trained.

Rushville friends of Frank Lindsay and Curt Gosnell, two Rush county horsemen, will doubtless be glad to learn that both of them have very promising strings of fast horses in training at the Cambridge City track. A glance at their prospects indicate that they have a reason to feel hopeful.

Frank Lindsay has 14 head which he has begun to step along, and he has what seems to be the best stable he has ever trained. He has the trotters Alfreton 2:29 1/4, who has worked to date in 2:28, last quarter in 34 seconds; Dummerer, a green trotter, whom Frank likes real well and has worked in 2:30, last half in 1:11; Wila, a 3-year-old trotter by Walnut Hill 2:08 1/4, dam by Moko, with a 2-year-old trial of 2:24. Frank bought her at J. S. Lackey's March sale and he says a lot of nice things about her. She has been in 2:31, last quarter in 34 1-2 seconds, and is paid up in $65,000 worth of stakes. Miss Peridot, a 3-year-old filly by Brnedot, dam by Earl Medium, in 2:40, last half in 1:14. McConnie, a 3-year-old trotter by Nutree, dam by Walter Winans, in 2:45. Gordon, 3-year-old trotter by Allertell, 2:18, half mile in 1:25, quarter in 39 seconds. Squire Kiser, 3-year-old by Allertell 2:18 dam by George W. Lederer, in 2:50, last quarter in 38 seconds. Allie Wilks, 3-year-old by Allertell, dam Martha Winks by Winks 2:20, in 2:50, quarter in 38 seconds. A 2-year-old trotter by Allertell and a green trotter by Anglin Wilks 2:16 1/4, dam by Auteros.

His pacers are not so numerous, but what they lack in quantity they have in quality. Queer Andy 2:16 1/4, owned by M. F. Cummins of Bentonville, and raced by Frank last season, is considered a bigging pacer and will be raced over the mile tracks after a few races over the half-mile tracks. Frank worked Queer Andy an easy mile in 2:12, last half in 1:04, at Eaton, Ohio, last fall, and has worked him in 2:25 last quarter in 32 seconds, so far this year. He is sired by one of Indiana's best speed sires, Anderson Wilks, dam by Robert B, dam of 2 in the list. Emaline B. 2:20 1/4, by Anglin Wilks, has worked in 2:30, last half in 1:10, and is owned by E. T. Fry of Falmouth. She is a green pacer. Miss Simmore, by Simmore 2:17, dam by Baron Posey 2:21, has been in 2:35. All of Frank's horses are in the pink of condition. He is located in the north end of the large sale barn, and has his own shoeing shop.

Curt Gosnell is in his old quarters, the brick barn, with 12 head. One of his trotters is F. A. L. 2:15 1/4, raced successfully last season over the half-mile tracks of Ohio and Pennsylvania and was the largest money winner in the Lake Erie circuit. He has been entered in some of the big stakes this year. He has worked in 2:25, last half in 1:10, up to date. His next horse is the handsome and fashionably bred stallion Alation, 2:15 1/4 over half-mile track. Alation is by the mighty Allerton 2:09 1/4, champion sire, dam Stray Moments by Nutwood 600. Alation is not only well bred and a grand individual, but is a very fast trotter, his record being far from his speed. He has been in 2:09, last half in 1:03, and will be raced this season and given a record somewhere near where he is capable of trotting. He is destined to become a great sire. All of the colts that have been trained seem to inherit his good looks and gait. Alation has been in 2:28, last quarter in 34 seconds, so far this year.

One of Curt's pacer is Halley's Comet 2:13 1/4, by Blan Alco, has trained in 2:25, last 1/4 in 32 seconds. Halley's Comet was one of Curt's best winners last season and he says some nice things about him. Another one of Curt's old pupils is Mabel W. 2:14 1/4, by Jack Herron, Mabel has trained in 2:27, last half in 1:10. Arlene 2:09 1/4, winner of 5 races in 1912 over half-mile tracks. She has a chance to win her share in any society. Curt purchased Arlene in J. S. Lackey's sale in March and will point her for the mile tracks. Probably her first start will be the Cleveland Grand Circuit meeting. She is a handsome mare and will no doubt prove a good race mare for Curt. She has been in 2:24, last quarter in 31 1/2 seconds. The green pacers are: Singer, bay gelding, by Anglin Wilks, has been in 2:28, quarter in 33 seconds. P. A. Miller, by Charlie Hayt 2:06 1/4 in 2:30. Bow Ringen, by Bingen 2:06 1/4 in 2:35, last quarter in 34 seconds. Gray gelding, by New Richmond 2:07 1/4 in 2:25 last quarter in 32 1/2 seconds. Chestnut's mare by Anderson Wilks in 2:35, last quarter in 35 seconds. Silkman, by Silkman 2:19 in 2:40, quarter in 36 seconds.

SPECIALS PLAY HERE TOMORROW

Locals Expect Hard Game From Indianapolis Team as They Are Considered Fast.

STARKEY WILL BE IN BOX

The Rushville team is expecting stiff opposition in the Indianapolis Specials tomorrow. The Specials played here last year and gave the locals a hard game. The team has been strengthened this season and has defeated some of the best teams in the state. Rushville will send in the regular lineup as follows: Mat-tern, catch; Avery pitch; Carr, first; Cook, second; Walter Coombs, third; Klenk, short; Hal-terman, left; Hahn, center; Coombs, right. The specials will line up as follows: Simon, catch; Starkey or Phillips, pitch; Shufflbarger, first; Essex, second; Burk, third; Hanna, short; W. Starkey, left; Reed, center; Green, right. The game will be called at two-thirty o'clock and Kinnett will umpire.

—Miss Mary Johnson of Mitroy has gone to Winona Lake for the summer.

CROWD LAUGHS AT SCHOOL FARCE

tions were given and they harked back to the days of the old-fashioned spelling bees.

The "Sore-eye" of the last afternoon attracted three visitors, Set-Still Campbell ("Chick" Williams), a member of the school board; Doe, Quackenbones (Eli Kinney); Widder Crockett (Florine Gronier), Mary Ellen's mother and the village band.

The essays, dialogues and recitations of the last day of school provoked a lot of mirth. Elizabeth Jane Crabtree (Emma Marshall) read an essay on George Washington which described his trip across the Alps in a boat; Jacob Von Hoffenstein gave an address on the mosquito, with the gestures thrown in; Jim Henry Cobb read an essay on the hen; Emma-zilla Uphill (Georgia Wyatt) gave a dramatic reading which was accompanied by a few faraway looks and the setting sun was also mentioned. There were a number of pieces which contributed to the fun of the last act.

After the band had played and the school program had been brought to a fitting close Set-Still Campbell was requested to make a few remarks in the nature of advice as a closing farewell to the pupils. He launched forth with a burst of oratory, but his remarks pertained only to voting right, which revealed that he had been spending his spare time at the Hick'ry Holler general store whittling cracker barrels.

Although all the proceeds of the play had not been gathered in today, it was estimated that the two classes made more than a hundred dollars, which will be divided equally among the two classes. The school room scene was painted by Bruce Beck and elicited much praise. The cast of characters follows:

WOMEN WILL TALK

And that accounts in a large measure for the success that this store has achieved.

Once a woman starts trading here, she gets such good values for her money and such considerate treatment that she can't resist telling her friends about it.

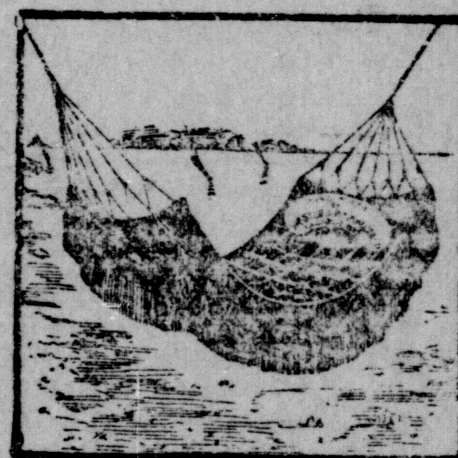

This word of mouth advertising helps our business more than any other single thing.
